CAPE VOICES

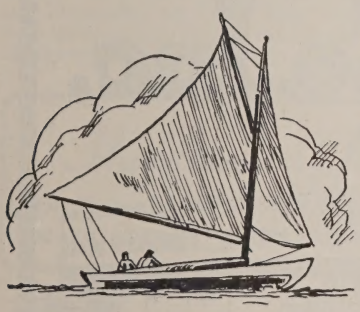
The Art of Attending the Theatre Successfully

by Val Gendron
(Drama Critic of the Falmouth Enterprise)

In June 1931 Stephen Potter delighted and astonished the world with "The Theory and Practice of Gamesmanship," which was the exploration of the subtle art of "Winning Games Without Actually Cheating." The world had long awaited this event, and impatiently demanded a sequel. Mr. Potter obliged with "Lifemanship, or the Art of Getting Away With It Without Being an Absolute Plonk."

Unfortunately, Mr. Potter's scientific study of the ability to practice "intimidation by conversation" or "One-Upmanship" did not extend to the Theater.

Mr. Potter advocates the strictest scientific procedures in his analysis, and therefore it is necessary to ask the fundamental question: What is the Theater for?



Books on the Theater carefully avoid this primary consideration, and exhaustingly discuss Art. Something no one knows anything about.

A good many authorities claim the Theater is a means of employing people who would otherwise be unemployable. This is utter bosh. The merest simpleton can see such people could be more economically employed doing absolutely nothing at far smaller salaries. A good many people in the Theater claim this is what happens anyhow. But this is a non sequitur.

Some misguided souls think the Theater is a legitimate means of making money. Even the briefest conversation with a Broadway Angel should disillusion the most starry-eyed idealist in this respect.

Nor can the Theater be considered a form of entertainment like Bridge and Soccer. People sleep through performances, talk, make love, cough, figure out next year's tax evasion.

The only possible reason for the existence of the Theater is the opportunity it gives people to practice One-Upmanship between the acts. Even the most superficial observation will reveal that any audience immediately comes alive the minute the curtain comes down. They rise, they glow, they scintillate. Eavesdrop shamelessly on them and you will find they are all discussing the same thing.

An exhaustive statistical study reveals that 90% of the people are talking about the Star. Further analysis reveals that of these 90%, some 35% are mouthing half-remembered phrases from rave reviews, the remainder are trying to practice One-Upmanship in a most elementary form—they are running her down.

This cannot be classified as a successful play, or gambit. Aside from its lack of originality its intention is to demonstrate that the speaker is an independent thinker.

CORNER MAIN AND WALKER STREETS—FALMOUTH

All it achieves is to show a lack of generosity and big-heartedness. It is incredible the number of people who fail to understand this ploy's tendency to backfire.

Fortunately, Summer Theater offers an opportunity for employing one of the most successful of all gambits. The technique is mercifully simple. Pick out a personable young person in a bit part, even an usher if you are clever enough, (in this single instance sex is not highly significant) and expound at length and in a loud voice on their talent, skill, artistry, timing, pace, diction, style—anything as long as you keep talking. From time to time throw in a reference to internationally famous actors or actresses whom you also discovered in summer stock, Bette Davis, Franchot Tone, Sarah Bernhardt, Lawrence Olivier.

The success of your ploy can be gauged by the attention paid you by hordes of perfect strangers. If the individual with you is embarrassed, it is of little significance—not your type anyhow—and a skillful master of Lifemanship can easily take his or her choice from the impressed listeners.

In case you are wondering, in the interests of science, what the other 10% are talking about, they are for the most part husbands and wives and they have lifted a telling line or two from the script to enforce the argument that began at the dinner table.

No real practioner of either Gamesmanship or Lifemanship ever finds himself in this predicament. It is, remember, the Art of Getting Away With It.

Acclaimed "the world's best actress" by the judges of the Cannes International Film Festival, SHIRLEY BOOTH climaxes her Festival of Four Plays at Richard Aldrich's Cape Playhouse with her performance as Lola Delaney in William Inge's absorbing and compelling drama, "Come Back, Little Sheba."

Slated for a week of eight performances beginning Monday, August 15, the cast will feature notably Edward Andrews as Doc, who gives a soul-searing portrayal as the middle-aged alcoholic tied to a slatternly wife and tormented by the past. Others in the supporting company include, George Gilbreath and Frank Milan.

The directional reins of "Come Back, Little Sheba" have been handled by Dan Levin who has previously won plaudits from legitimate theatregoers and critics for his creative efforts on "The Vinegar Tree," "The Time of the Cuckoo," and "My Sister Eileen" all of which starred Shirley Booth. His deft and sensitive treatment of "Sheba" faithfully serves all of the intense drama and stirring, heart-throbbing pathos that made "Come Back, Little Sheba" such a magnificent playgoing experience while on Broadway.

William Inge, author of the Pulitzer Prize winner, "Picnic" and the current top Broadway hit, "Bus Stop" has fashioned a provocative drama that deals with the shattered dreams and frustrations of a middle-aged couple. The husband disillusioned and shackled by despair over a wasted life, takes to the bottle to seek refuge from reality. The wife lives on nostalgic memories of youth, trying to retain a semblance of dignity in a hopeless situation.

Bringing their drab and colorless life into sharp contrast is the presence of a pair of young lovers. The girl, a lodger with the hopeless couple, is enamored of a young college athlete. The healthy attraction they feel for each other and the strong passion that engulfs them, only serves to accent the lack of romance in the lives of the husband and wife. The situation explodes in a climax of raw emotion which brings the story of "Come Back, Little Sheba" to an unforgettable finish.

For Shirley Booth's superlative performance as the blowsy wife surrounded by decay and despair in the Theatre Guild production on Broadway she was awarded the coveted Antoinette Perry Award, Drama Critics Variety Poll, Donaldson Award, Barter Theatre Award and the Newspaper Guild Page One Award.

For her film portrayal in the screen translation of this outstanding drama she received the Academy Award, New York Film Critics Circle Award, Golden Globe Award—Hollywood Foreign Correspondent's Association, Foreign Language Film Critics Circle Award, Look Magazine Award, National Board of Review Award, Family Circle Magazine Award, Associated Press Poll, Redbook Magazine Award, Parents Magazine Award, Saturday Review of Literature Award and Winner, the Cannes International Film Festival (World's Best Actress).

Performances for "Come Back, Little Sheba" have been scheduled nightly through Saturday, August 20 at 8:30 p.m.

Brilliant performances, a tightly knit story that moves to its inexorable climax with unrelenting power and skilled direction, combine to make William Inge's "Come Back, Little Sheba" a drama of rare excellence and a fitting tribute, as the final play of the Festival, to Shirley Booth, "the most honored actress of the American stage."

FOR THE LEISURE MOMENTS

Perhaps you have noticed. Tucked away in the corner of the lobby is a selection of ANCHOR BOOKS—most of them on the theatre—some of them on everything else—which is yours just for the asking plus a small pittance usually less than a dollar.

We didn't select all the Anchor Books, just the ones we thought you would be interested in looking at during intermissions or curling up with on the beach. Among the dozen books that we picked are The Modern Theatre volumes containing such plays as "La Ronde," "The Threepenny Opera," and "Thieves' Carnival," Six Plays by Strindberg, Stendhal's Charterhouse of Parma, Gide's Lafcadio's Adventures, and for the more serious moments—The Lonely Crowd by David Riesman, and A Collection of Essays by George Orwell.

Why don't you take a look at them?

THE RAYMOND MOORE FOUNDATION, chartered by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a charitable corporation, was formed for the education and benefit of the public by the promotion and fostering of music, drama, horticulture and the fine arts. Under the will of the late Raymond Moore, who founded the Playhouse in 1927, it was provided that all his estate should be placed in trust for this particular purpose. The Raymond Moore Foundation owns the Cape Cinema, the Cape Playhouse Restaurant, the Cape Arts Center and Gardens, and a controlling interest in the Cape Playhouse. All of these properties adjoin each other. The income derived from such ownership is used for its maintenance and development. Joshua A. Nickerson is the President. The Cape Playhouse is leased and operated by Aldrich Productions, Inc.

BILLIE BURKE (Ellen Smith)

Billie Burke is graciously welcomed for her first appearance at "America's Most Famous Summer Theatre." A veteran trouper and one of the true great ladies of the American theatre, Miss Burke's introduction to grease-paint came in London at the Prince of Wales Theatre. There she played Mamie Rockefeller in the "School Girl" showing the first radiance of the star that was soon to make her an international favorite. In less than a half dozen plays later she was the toast of London and en route to the United States to star with John Drew in "My Wife." American audiences found this "British import" irresistible—and claimed her for their own—even though she was actually born in Washington, D. C. In subsequent engagements—"Love Watchers," "Mrs. Dot Suzanne," "The Runaway," "The Amazons," "Jerry" and countless others she swept all before her and became Broadway's brightest star.

West Coast moguls reached out for her for motion pictures soon after the medium was developed and she said yes—having also said that to the fabulous Florenz Ziegfeld's proposal of marriage. Famous Players' Lasky starred her in many silents while she was commuting back to Broadway for "A Marriage of Convenience" and the "Truth Game." Then came the first "talkie," "A Bill of Divorcement," and her inimitable comedy touch made her a top Metro star for years. "Dinner At Eight," the "Topper" series and "The Young In
